5G, IoT, and More: FBI Technology Outlook

S103 BC

To stay relevant, CSOs must keep up with the latest technology that both enables and threatens security. This conversation will present both sides of the security impact brought to bear by these technologies. For example, 5G is supposed to usher in an era of almost instantaneous high-speed connectivity, which will supercharge the Internet of Things. But omnipresent connectivity means omnipresent opportunities and vectors for attack. Find out what security executives need to know about these and other technologies.

Speaker:

Christopher Piehota, Executive Assistant Director, Science and Technology Branch (STB), Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)

Moderated by Richard Kelly, Senior Vice President, Global Safety, Security & Business Continuity, Chubb
